

CIO Corporate innovation online Innovation management best practices

Paul White, Toronto, Canada, has consulted with corporations and not-for-profit organizations in Canada, the U.S.A., Europe (Eastern and Western), Russia, Armenia, Serbia, Kazakhstan and Australia. He has traveled to over 60 countries and has conducted project work in 24 countries.

Commencing his career as an industrial engineer concerned with productivity and performance improvement, Paul has since focused on assisting clients in the development of their business strategy and addressing corporate innovation issues.

Paul has had extensive industry and management consulting experience with the following organizations:

- Managing Director, Hatch; an international consulting engineering company headquartered in Mississauga, Canada. The Founder, Gerry Hatch, left a legacy of innovation.
- President of Arthur D. Little Canada Ltd., at the time the oldest management and technology consulting company in the world, headquartered in Cambridge, Massachusetts, U.S.A.
- Partner and Director of Currie, Coopers and Lybrand (previously known as Urwick, Currie & Partners).

Early in his career he worked for IBM and Massey Ferguson in Canada and in the U.S.A, and with Metropolitan-Vickers Ltd. in Manchester, England. Most recent professional work includes working on strategic issues for private corporations and the Aboriginal community in Canada.

He was awarded scholarships for study in the U.K. and at the University of Western Ontario, London, Ontario, Canada.

Paul's professional experience has also included the following positions:

- President of the Institute of Management Consultants of Canada,
- President of the Institute of Management Consultants of Ontario,
- Governor-General designate with the Association of Professional Engineers of Ontario,
- Volunteer work with a Canadian international organization of executives – CESO – serving clients abroad in Russia, Serbia and Armenia, and service, as a Board Director, on a number of not-for-profit organizations engaged in the arts and social services.

He is a Fellow of the Institute of Certified Management Consultants of Ontario and holds the following academic and professional qualifications; B. Sc., M.B.A., P. Eng., FCMC. He is a graduate of the University of Manitoba, the University of Western Ontario, and a diploma course at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Researching and articulating innovation management best practices

CIO Corporate innovation online
Innovation management best practices